

Web and E-Mail Hosting

Celestine provides website and e-mail hosting for clients using our Product, Real Estate, and Contact Management Services.

The services we supply allow a website developer to concentrate on the “look and feel” of the website rather than spending time designing and developing a database to create additional services. The management of the database is done with CTI Organiser™.

We provide the website designer access to the tools on our servers for creation and hosting of the website. We also deliver support during their design and development to ensure the database and tools fit the requirements.

Real Estate Website Types

There are three types of websites typically used for real estate brokers and agents. The Contact Management feature can be added to any of the website types.

Broker/Owner Custom Site

The broker usually has a custom site containing general information regarding the broker, their offices, unique characteristics and contact information. It provides a way for consumers to locate an agent or property, important services we offer.

All of the broker's listings, and those of co-operating brokers, are retrieved and displayed in many different ways. The site also displays a Realtor® search page allowing consumers to search for an agent via name, location, language, keyword, etc.

Agent Custom Site

Agents and teams can have one of two different types of sites. The first is a custom site similar to the broker's but focusing on the agent's unique wishes.

As with the broker sites, it is possible to use many web technologies to deliver the desired user experience, integrated with our Real Estate Listing and Contact Management features.

Celestine provides several methods for custom sites to retrieve and display information from the system, allowing the website developer complete freedom to build the website.

Agent Template Site

The second agent and team website type is based on one of our predefined templates. These describe the general layout of a site but provide the website developer an enormous level of flexibility to tailor the look to the agent's wishes. A template website requires little or no HTML and scripting, allowing it to be created and managed by less technical staff, or even the broker or agent.

Agents can choose from any of the available templates, select their desired style, colours and graphics, and even select Flash movies or other customised web technologies

With the wide variety of options available through template sites it is possible that no two agents have the same site, unless a broker would prefer all agent sites have an air of consistency.

Website Hosting

In addition to Real Estate, website hosting is available for all businesses subscribing to our Product or Contact Management services. Notes and e-mail campaigns are available as options.

CTI Organiser™

CTI Organiser includes sections for the real-time maintenance of products, real estate listings and agents, and contacts. As a web-based service, it can be accessed anywhere you have an Internet connection.

E-Mail Hosting

Mailboxes can be configured as POP, IMAP or forwarding. One or more accounts within a domain can be configured as domain administrators in order to completely control your mail service. We also provide anti-spam technologies, including black and white listing and quarantine.

Celestine's high performance mail servers include an integrated WebMail service allowing you to send and receive mail from anywhere by using a browser and Internet connection.

Developer Support

Celestine offers support to website developers to ensure they can meet or exceed the customer's expectations.
